IH01 – EXPLANATIONS

1. (B) Ghaggar — Kalibangan stands on the left bank of the dried-up Ghaggar, widely identified with the Vedic Saraswati. The name Kalibangan means 'black bangles', after the fragments found on the mounds.

2. (B) Harappa — Harappa on the Ravi was the first site excavated, in 1921, by Daya Ram Sahni under John Marshall. The civilisation takes its alternative name from this type-site.

3. (A) R.D. Banerji — Rakhal Das Banerji discovered Mohenjodaro in Larkana district of Sindh in 1922. The name means 'mound of the dead' in Sindhi.

- 4. (C) B.B. Lal and B.K. Thapar — B.B. Lal and B.K. Thapar excavated Kalibangan for the ASI between 1961 and 1969. The mound had first been brought to notice by the Italian indologist Luigi Pio Tessitori early in the twentieth century.
- 5. (B) J.P. Joshi — J.P. Joshi of the ASI located and excavated Surkotada, a small fortified Harappan settlement in Rapar taluka of Kutch. The identification of the bones as true horse, argued by Sandor Bokonyi, remains disputed.
- 6. (D) R.S. Bisht — R.S. Bisht directed the long campaign at Dholavira between 1989 and 2005. It was the first Harappan site in India to be given World Heritage status.
- 7. (A) Lothal — The large trapezoidal basin at Lothal in Ahmedabad district is generally interpreted as a tidal dockyard connected to the Bhogavo. Lothal also yielded rice husk and a Persian Gulf seal.
- 8. (D) Mohenjodaro — The 'Dancing Girl' from Mohenjodaro was cast by the lost-wax (cire perdue) process and is now in the National Museum, New Delhi. The steatite 'Priest-King' bust is from the same site.
- 9. (B) Chanhudaro — Chanhudaro in Sindh is the only major Harappan city that has no fortified citadel mound. It was an industrial town noted for bead-making, shell-working and an inkpot.
- 10. (A) Sutkagendor — Sutkagendor on the Dasht river in Balochistan marks the western limit of the civilisation. Alamgirpur on the Hindon marks the eastern limit.
- 11. (C) Rakhigarhi — Rakhigarhi in Hisar district of Haryana, spread over several mounds on a Ghaggar palaeochannel, is the largest Harappan settlement in India. Dholavira is the largest in Gujarat.
- 12. (B) Ropar — Ropar (Rupnagar) on the Sutlej was excavated by Y.D. Sharma in 1953, the first such excavation in independent India. It is also famous for a dog buried along with a human.
- 13. (D) Dholavira — The inlaid gypsum signboard of ten large characters was found near the north gate of the citadel at Dholavira. It is the largest known piece of Indus writing.
- 14. (C) 4 : 2 : 1 — The standard Harappan brick had its length, breadth and thickness in the ratio 4:2:1, used consistently from Sindh to Gujarat. Such uniformity is a mark of the civilisation's standardisation.
- 15. (A) Chert — Cubical weights of chert are found across Harappan sites, following a binary scheme in the lower denominations. Scales of ivory (Lothal) and shell (Mohenjodaro) were used for linear measurement.
- 16. (D) Kalibangan — A pre-Harappan ploughed field with two sets of furrows crossing at right angles was found south-east of the settlement at Kalibangan. It suggests the cultivation of two crops together.
- 17. (A) Meluha — Mesopotamian texts call the Indus region Meluha; Dilmun is identified with Bahrain and Magan with the Makran-Oman coast. Both were intermediate stations on the sea route.
- 18. (B) Unicorn — The one-horned 'unicorn' with a ritual standard before it occurs on the majority of Harappan seals. Seals are typically square and made of steatite.
- 19. (A) Banawali — Banawali in Fatehabad district of Haryana yielded a terracotta model of a plough along with good quality barley. Kalibangan yielded the actual ploughed field.
- 20. (B) Mehrgarh — Mehrgarh, near the Bolan pass in Balochistan, has yielded the earliest evidence of farming of wheat and barley and of cotton in South Asia. It represents the pre-urban ancestry of the Harappan tradition.
- 21. (B) Hanumangarh — Kalibangan lies in Hanumangarh district, between Suratgarh and Hanumangarh town. It is the only major urban Harappan site in Rajasthan.
- 22. (C) Pravara — Daimabad in Ahmednagar district of Maharashtra stands on the Pravara, a tributary of the Godavari. Its celebrated bronze hoard includes a chariot with a driver, a bull, an elephant and a rhinoceros.
- 23. (D) I, II and III — All three are correct. Kalibangan also yielded camel bones, a bangle-making industry and an unusual extended north-south burial practice.
- 24. (A) I and II only — Lothal is in Ahmedabad district, not Kutch, so statement III is wrong. Rice husk from Lothal and Rangpur is among the earliest evidence of rice in a Harappan context.
- 25. (C) I and III only — Mohenjodaro lies on the Indus, not the Ravi, so statement II is wrong. The Great Bath, the Great Granary and the college of priests are all on the citadel mound.
- 26. (C) I and II only — Doorways opened on to side lanes rather than the main streets, so statement III is wrong. Underground drains covered with stone slabs, fitted with manholes and soak-pits, ran along the streets.

- 27. (A) I and III only — Iron was entirely unknown to the Harappans, so statement II is wrong. The Harappan age is therefore a Bronze Age culture; iron appears in India only in the later Vedic period.
- 28. (D) I, II and III — All three statements are correct. Dholavira stands on Khadir Bet island between the Mansar and Manhar streams in the Rann of Kutch.
- 29. (B) II and III only — No temples and no cult images have been identified, so statement I is wrong. Worship is inferred instead from terracotta mother-goddess figurines, the Pashupati seal, lingam-yoni stones and the pipal tree.
- 30. (C) II and III only — The Indus script remains undeciphered, so statement I is wrong. It is pictographic and was written boustrophedon, the first line running right to left.
- 31. (A) A-2, B-1, C-4, D-3 — Harappa is on the Ravi, Mohenjodaro on the Indus, Kalibangan on the Ghaggar and Lothal on the Bhogavo. Alamgirpur, the eastern outpost, lies on the Hindon.
- 32. (C) A-2, B-1, C-3, D-4 — Lothal was excavated by S.R. Rao, Harappa by Daya Ram Sahni, Dholavira by R.S. Bisht and Mohenjodaro was discovered by R.D. Banerji. Kalibangan was excavated by B.B. Lal and B.K. Thapar.
- 33. (D) A-2, B-1, C-3, D-4 — Banawali is in Fatehabad district (Haryana), Kalibangan in Hanumangarh (Rajasthan), Ropar in Rupnagar (Punjab) and Alamgirpur in Meerut (Uttar Pradesh).
- 34. (B) A-2, B-1, C-3, D-4 — Chanhudaro was a bead-making centre, Lothal has the dockyard, Surkotada yielded the disputed horse bones and Daimabad the bronze chariot group.
- 35. (C) A-2, B-4, C-1, D-3 — Wheeler argued for an Aryan invasion, Raikes for repeated flooding, Gurdip Singh for growing aridity from pollen data, and Dales for tectonic disturbance. Most scholars now favour a gradual, multi-causal decline.
- 36. (D) Rakhigarhi - Fatehabad district, Haryana — Rakhigarhi is in Hisar district of Haryana; Fatehabad district contains Banawali and Bhirrana. The other three pairs are correct.
- 37. (B) Knowledge of iron smelting — Iron was unknown to the Harappans, who worked copper, bronze, gold, silver and lead. Iron enters the Indian record only in the later Vedic period.
- 38. (D) Banawali — Banawali is in Fatehabad district of Haryana. Lothal, Rangpur, Surkotada, Dholavira, Rojdi and Desalpur are all Gujarat sites.
- 39. (C) Ten-sign signboard - Kalibangan — The inlaid ten-sign signboard belongs to Dholavira, not Kalibangan. Kalibangan is known instead for its ploughed field, fire altars and camel bones.
- 40. (A) II, IV, I, III — Harappa was excavated in 1921, Mohenjodaro in 1922, Chanhudaro in 1931 and Lothal from 1955. Kalibangan followed in 1961 and Dholavira in 1989.

- 14. (D) shyama ayas — Iron appears in later Vedic texts as shyama ayas or krishna ayas, literally 'dark metal', while copper was lohita ayas. The period is archaeologically linked with Painted Grey Ware.
- 15. (C) Anguttara Nikaya — The Anguttara Nikaya of the Sutta Pitaka enumerates the sixteen Mahajanapadas. The Jain Bhagavati Sutra gives a somewhat different list of sixteen.
- 16. (D) Viratnagar — Matsya, covering the Jaipur-Alwar-Bharatpur region of Rajasthan, had its capital at Viratnagar, modern Bairat in Jaipur district. Mathura was the capital of Surasena.
- 17. (A) Shivi — The Shivi (Sibi) republic, which migrated from the Punjab, settled around Chittorgarh with its capital at Madhyamika. Shivi coins bearing the legend 'Majhamikaya Sibi janapadasa' have been found there.

- 20. (A) Mahavira — Parshvanatha prescribed four vows - non-injury, truth, non-stealing and non-possession - and Mahavira added celibacy as the fifth. Together they form the panchamahavratas of Jain ascetics.

- 23. (C) Moggaliputta Tissa — The third council was held at Pataliputra under the patronage of Ashoka and the presidency of Moggaliputta Tissa, who also composed the Kathavatthu. Missionaries, including Mahendra and Sanghamitra, were sent out after it.
- 24. (D) Khuddaka Nikaya of the Sutta Pitaka — The Jatakas, tales of the Buddha's previous births, belong to the Khuddaka Nikaya, one of the five nikayas of the Sutta Pitaka. They are a major source for the social life of the period.
- 25. (B) Ajivika sect — The Ajivikas, led by Makkhali Gosala, held that everything is fixed by niyati and that human effort cannot alter destiny. Ashoka and his grandson Dasharatha both donated caves to this sect.
- 26. (A) I and II only — There was no regular taxation in the early Vedic period; bali was a voluntary offering to the chief, so statement III is wrong. The chief's officials were the Purohita, Senani, Gramani and Vrajapati.
- 27. (D) I, II and III — All three statements are correct. The later Vedic period also saw the introduction of iron (shyama ayas) and the settlement of the Ganga-Yamuna doab.
- 28. (B) I and II only — The first Jain council at Pataliputra was presided over by Sthulabhadra; Bhadrabahu had by then migrated south with his followers, so statement III is wrong. That split produced the Shvetambara and Digambara sects.

- 32. (B) I and III only — A list of sixteen Mahajanapadas is given by the Jain Bhagavati Sutra as well as by the Buddhist Anguttara Nikaya, so statement II is wrong. Panini's grammar is a key source for the janapadas of north-west India and Rajasthan.
- 33. (C) I and II only — Sanjaya Belatthiputta represented Ajnana, the school of scepticism, not the Charvaka school, so statement III is wrong. Charvaka materialism is traditionally traced to Brihaspati.

- 41. (B) A rigid birth-based caste system with untouchability — Social divisions in the early Vedic period were fluid and based mainly on occupation; a rigid, birth-based varna order hardened only in the later Vedic age. Untouchability is not attested in the Rigveda.
- 42. (C) Bhadrabahu - Shvetambara sect — Bhadrabahu, who led the migration to the south, is associated with the Digambara sect; Sthulabhadra's followers who stayed behind became the Shvetambaras. The other three pairs are correct.

- 27. (C) I and III only — Pillar Edict VII is found only on the Delhi-Topra pillar, so statement II is wrong. The Separate Rock Edicts replace Rock Edicts XI-XIII at the two Kalinga sites.
- 28. (C) I and II only — Bairat, ancient Viratnagar, was the capital of Matsya, not Surasena, whose capital was Mathura, so III is wrong. Its two Ashokan records are the Bairat minor rock edict and the Bhabru edict.
